

Ethics in Public Safety

Length: 1 day

Audience: All employees, sworn and non-sworn

Each day, law enforcement members across the country come under great scrutiny for the improper actions of the few who violate their oath and office. This is unfortunately true, regardless of where the breach of office occurs. Public trust is critical to all law enforcement agencies and must be constantly prioritized to be maintained. This workshop focuses on the influence of the ethical leader and reveals the perceptions and outcomes caused by the few who compromise their position. Attendees will be exposed to facilitated discussions that demonstrate the influence of leadership, and the need for all employees to do the right thing, for the right reason, at the right time regardless of rank.

Objectives:

- Analyze case studies of LE situations that have resulted in conflict, and identify actions that employees, supervisors, commanders, and administrators could have taken to intervene
- List the core elements of the office of government ethics
- Identify potential conflicts of interest in LE (dilemmas, temptations, responsibilities)
- Discuss early warning signs
- Evaluate the perceived origins/contributions to the degradation of LE integrity
- Illustrate an example of customer dissatisfaction stemming from employee language or deliver
- Describe a misuse of position
- Describe an ethical leader
- Review the IACP Oath of Honor
